At the moment, many are struggling in a unique situation that is new to most people today. Due to the COVID-19 Global Pandemic, most people are stuck at home and social distancing to prevent obtaining the virus. Through these tough times during the pandemic, I decided to photograph and highlight the various aspects of our lives that have changed drastically over this time— such as being stuck at home, having your favorite shops and restaurants close, and having to wear facial coverings while doing activities in public.

My goal is to capture what it is that has affected us in the past couple months to reflect on the small, little things that we have gotten used to and took advantage of in our daily lives before the pandemic.
